Dear Ms. Fenton:

Programs that foster education enrichment through the arts and family counseling are important to improving the well-being of families with disabled children who are struggling to find quality, affordable care and education for their children. As such, I am pleased to express my support for the Eve Fenton Love All Foundation, which seeks to address the needs of low income families with children with disabilities.

There is a dearth of programs that offer holistic, family oriented care for poor and disabled children. As a member of the Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities Committee and as the Deputy Minority Leader of the New York State Senate, I fight continually for the protection and expansion of services for disabled children and their families. I am glad to be joined in that fight by the Eve Fenton Love All Foundation.

Sincerely,

Eric T. Schneiderman
